THE EAST.

The "Times" Announces the Plans of the Independents.

A CALIFORNIA PUGILIST WHIPPED.

Sullivan Arrested for Playing Baseball on Sunday—Bank Presidents Object to Treasurer Jordan's Views on the Silver Question.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1[illegible].—The Times to-day declares that the independents will not follow the lead of Hoar and Sherman. Nominations which represent nothing better nor worse than Hoar's ideas of republicanism coupled with the platform utterances such as a republican convention inspired and managed by that pre-Adamite gentleman will be very apt to adopt, would drive thousands of Massachusetts independents to the support of any respectable democratic ticket. Democrats of that state manifest a disposition to make nominations which will be acceptable and worthy of independent support. But the republican party in New York is not in the hands of Hoar. It is fortunate in having leaders who if not exactly faultless according to the independent standard are yet not fossils. The New York independents can await with unconcern the work of the two conventions. We say the two because as there is nothing certain in politics it is possible the independents or many of them will not decide upon their course in the campaign until they have inspected the democratic ticket."

INDIAN TERRITORY NEWS.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. [illegible].—The Times' Little Rock special says: Cattlemen are rapidly removing their stock from the Crow reservation in accordance with the order of Indian Agent Armstrong. Several owners of herds were slow to obey, but Armstrong informed them that he would call on the president and have them forcibly ejected by troops, and the exodus then became general. Several thousand head of cattle have been driven out [illegible] by the latter. It is believed the reservation will be cleared.

Rev. Andrew D. Hunter, an itinerant preacher from Charleston, S. C., was shot and killed yesterday in the Chickasaw nation by a man named White. The latter had persuaded Hunter's daughter to elope with him. Hunter followed and was slain while trying to force White to make the girl his wife. White escaped.

NAPOLEON'S ADMIRERS TO THE FRONT.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1[illegible].—The guardians of Riverside park are having a new difficulty to cope with. It was [illegible] a short time ago that a willow tree in the neighborhood of the park was grown from a slip cut from a bough which had helped to shade the grave of the great Napoleon. Since then no loyal Frenchman has come to the park without a knife and now there is scarcely a willow in that entire part that has not suffered, and many have been badly disfigured. On the other hand there is scarcely a resident of the French district who has not a prospective willow tree sticking in [illegible] child of the bough that waved over Napoleon's tomb. The police threaten to make an example of some of the future offenders.

HOSTILES GOING NORTH.

DEMING, N. M., Sept. 1[illegible].—A band of Indians crossed the railroad seven miles east of here this morning, going north. It is not known whether they are Indian scouts following renegades or another band of hostiles which the troops have run out of Mexico, but they are generally believed to be hostiles who are following the route of those who passed north last week and did the killing near Lake Valley. From signal fires seen in the mountains the hostiles evidently have scouts in advance and find no trouble [illegible] the troops and [illegible] safety from one section of the country to another.

THE CALIFORNIA OFFICES.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1[illegible].—The [illegible] Washington special says: The president is said to have taken a decided stand in reference to California appointments which may also extend to other states in which there are bitter factional contests. The California factions are so bitter that each claims they would rather have republican officials continue in office than see the other faction triumph. The president has given California politicians to understand that he will not listen to anything further in reference to these offices or make any more appointments until the strife ceases.

NEW YORK POLITICS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1[illegible].—Democratic and republican district conventions to select delegates to the forthcoming state conventions were held throughout the state yesterday. In many of the democratic conventions resolutions endorsing President Cleveland's administration were passed. In some of them the delegates were instructed to vote in the convention for Governor Hill for the gubernatorial candidate. In others they were instructed for other candidates. The republican delegates generally go uninstructed.

AID FOR PARNELL.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 1[illegible].—A large meeting of Irish American citizens was held here this evening. Judge Fitzgerald presided. Seven hundred dollars were subscribed and $5000 are pledged. The meeting instructed its president to send the following dispatch: To Charles Stewart Parnell and Associates, Dublin: A mass meeting of Irish Americans held here to-night pledged immediate assistance to the parliamentary fund and home rule.

SUIT AGAINST A [illegible] ESTATE.

GALVESTON, TEX., Sept. 1[illegible].—A special to the News from Fort Worth says: The will of John Nichols, late vice president of the City National bank, was probated yesterday, Mrs. Nichols being qualified as executrix. A. M. Britton, president of the bank, immediately began suit against the executrix for the recovery of $[illegible], the amount of Nichols' defalcation. The Nichols estate is rated at $40 000.

THE ENGLISH FISH ALL DEAD.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1[illegible].—Fish Commissioner Blackford was on hand yesterday morning at the pier of the Red Star line to take charge of the shipment of brills and soles expected on the steamer Republic. Instead of fish he found a lot of empty tanks. The brills and soles had died before reaching Liverpool en route for New York.

[illegible] RELIGION TO THE POLLS.

BOSTON, Sept. 1[illegible].—Owing to the extreme activity of Protestant women in the matter of voting for school committees it is stated that an active movement is on foot in Catholic circles to bring all women of that faith to the polls at the coming municipal election for the purpose of counteracting as far as possible the influence of those opposing the belief.

CLEARING HOUSE RETURNS.

BOSTON, Sept. 1[illegible].—Leading clearing houses of the United States report that the total clearances for the week ending September 1[illegible] were $710,327,[illegible], an increase of 12 per cent compared with the corresponding week last year.

WHITNEY RETURNS.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—Secretary Whitney returned to Washington early this morning.

THE TEXAS PRIZE FIGHT.

The Californian Pulls off his Gloves at the End of the Fifth Round.

GALVESTON, Sept. 1[illegible].—The Galveston News' [illegible] special says: The much expected prize fight [illegible] McGregor, known as the St. [illegible] Kid, of Fort Worth, and Wm. [illegible] Black of California came off to-day at a point [illegible] miles below Dallas on the [illegible] railway. At [illegible] o'clock a train of ten coaches left the depot crowded with sporting men from Fort Worth and neighboring towns. A ring was stretched about noon, at a point just below Seagoville in Kaufman county. James Kinney of Dallas was chosen referee. George Murray of New York seconded the Californian, while William Marshall of Fort Worth acted for McGregor. Both men appeared in excellent condition. McGregor weighed 1[illegible] pounds and Black tipped the beam at 150. Two-ounce gloves were used and Marquis of Queensbury rules were the programme of the fight. Time was called at [illegible], and both pugilists advanced toward each other amidst loud cheers.

Round 1—Black led out with his right at McGregor's head but was cleverly dodged. The Kid landed several heavy body blows on Black and the latter responded by vainly endeavoring to catch McGregor on the neck. The McGregor got in a neat blow on Black's nose, and the round closed with first blood claimed for the Kid.

Round 2—McGregor forced the fighting, and after considerable sparring planted a terrific blow on Black's jaw which infuriated the Californian who answered by sending a tremendous right hander against the Kid's head, knocking him down full length. McGregor recovered and hugged Black so as to avoid further punishment. Freeing himself from the Kid's grasp Black again sent his antagonist to the ground.

Round 3—McGregor was cautious, and Black showed more aggression. Both men received numerous body blows, the Kid displaying adroitness in dodging Black.

Round 4—McGregor led off on Black's ribs which he followed up until Black clinched and the round closed with the Kid on top.

Round [illegible]—Both men came up with sickly smiles, and showing their punishment plainly. McGregor was still good for a couple of rounds, and he forced the fighting by repeatedly punching Black's ribs in [illegible] fashion. The Californian fought gamely and tried hard to get another good blow in on McGregor's face. Suddenly the Kid, with a swinging uppercut caught Black under his short ribs and landed him outside the ropes where he lay like one dead. After a quarter of a minute, Black revived and began to pull off his gloves whereupon the referee awarded the fight to McGregor.

Fully $10 000 changed hands on the result. Betting at the opening was slightly in favor of Black, and at the close of the second round Black's friends were offering two to one with few takers. Although nearly 1,500 men witnessed the fight, no disturbance of any kind occurred.

For Coughs and Colds Red Star Cough Cure is safe, pleasant, sure remedy.

THE SILVER QUESTION.

Bank Presidents Object to Treasurer Jordan's Construction of the Law.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—The Sun says: Another important phase of Treasurer Jordan's effort to circulate standard silver dollars and subsidiary coin has been developed. It was learned yesterday that the supply of legal tender notes held by banks of this city has been decreased in the last two weeks nearly nine million dollars. This extraordinary decrease occasioned much comment amongst the presidents of banks represented in the clearing house association. The comment is not favorable to Jordan's construction of the clause in the silver act providing for the issue of silver certificates deposited in lieu of standard silver dollars.

A bank president said last night that Jordan's construction of the clause, while undoubtedly within the law, nevertheless is decidedly too rigid at this season of the year when the cotton and other crops have to be moved by money supplied by New York banks.

"The big banks in this city," continued the bank president, "are now sending south every week from a quarter to a half a million apiece. I have ten, twenty and [illegible] dollar bills. We are compelled to do it because we haven't silver dollars to deposit with the sub-treasury in order to get silver certificates. We will not handle silver dollars. We will not even take advantage of the law which gives us the right to make them a part of our reserve. Last year Gen. Spinner's construction of the clause gave us $[illegible] in silver certificates in lieu of deposits of gold. Of course that was an evasion of the law, but it tided us over and assisted southern merchants and everything was serene. Now we haven't any silver certificates, our supply of small bills are daily growing less and if something is not done we shall have to fall back upon our gold supply. Of course we could send them silver dollars but southern merchants will not stand the expense of handling silver. Why I know of bank presidents chasing around [illegible] for small bills for [illegible] tellers. The sub-treasury cannot supply us, but we are in a pretty fix, all because of Jordan's interpretation of the clause relating to the issue of silver certificates."

A movement is on foot by which the effect of Jordan's order will be annulled. Certain bank presidents suggest that it would be possible to deposit gold in the sub-treasury and receive in return standard dollars and the next day return the silver dollars and get silver certificates. The gold would remain here, the silver certificates would be returned [illegible] and the force of Jordan's restriction would be broken.

ACCIDENTS.

GALVESTON, Sept. 1[illegible].—A special from Sherman to the News says: A serious accident occurred yesterday [illegible] miles west of this town on the Texas Pacific railroad. Two coaches of a passenger train left the track and were overturned. The parties have visited the scene of the accident and have brought the wounded passengers here. Mrs. Wolf of Dodd City died. [illegible] The injured are as follows: Mrs. [illegible] of Sherman, Mrs. W. W. [illegible], of Henrietta, Mrs. Young, of [illegible], J. J. [illegible] and son J. W. [illegible] and H. W. J. [illegible] of Bolles Station, J. [illegible] and [illegible] of [illegible], and Rev. G. [illegible] of [illegible] Bosque county. Mr. [illegible] was severely bruised about the head and had all his teeth knocked out. It is not thought that any of the others received fatal injuries but all were more or less painfully hurt. The accident is believed to have been caused by a broken axle.

SUPPOSED TO BE A WRECK.

[illegible], Sept. [illegible].—The following [illegible] a [illegible] few days since in [illegible] creek near Hastings:

MONDAY, Aug. [illegible].

[illegible] Murray, Capt. [illegible] of [illegible]. A heavy gale off Hatteras. We are likely to go to pieces. The vessel lays on her beam ends. Two sailors washed overboard, names George Wilson and Larry Smith. We will all probably be lost. (Signed) CAPTAIN.

SUES FOR HEAVY DAMAGES.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. [illegible].—Charles H. Chamberlain to-day commenced in the United States circuit court to-day against the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad asking $100,000 damages for injuries received in the accident on that road near Woodburn, Iowa, ten years ago. Mr. Chamberlain claims that he was permanently disabled by the accident and has since then been subject to epileptic fits and other serious brain troubles.

THREE MEN DROWNED.

[illegible], MASS., Sept. 13.—Charles [illegible], [illegible] Curtis and Arthur Wheeler [illegible] were drowned to-day by the [illegible] of a [illegible].

SPORTING NOTES.

SULLIVAN ARRESTED FOR PLAYING BALL.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 1[illegible].—[illegible] were at Brookside park to-day to see John L. Sullivan pitch for Forest City again with [illegible] [illegible] and the game which resulted in a victory for the Sanduskys by a score of two to nothing, was watched with interest. At the close of the game and as the champion was leaving the ground he was placed under arrest by Constable Jones, the shrewdest officer in the city, who was armed with a warrant charging Sullivan with violating the Sunday law by playing ball. Sullivan offered no resistance but going before Justice Hart gave bail in the sum of $[illegible] for his appearance at [illegible] o'clock to-morrow. The warrant was sworn out it is said at the request of John D. Rockefeller of the Standard Oil company representing the law and order league. It was the intention to arrest Sullivan before the game began [illegible] the warrant [illegible].

THE PURITAN AND THE [illegible].

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—Indications are now [illegible] that there will be another large crowd to attend the racing of the yachts again to-morrow. The Puritan was hauled out on the screw dock at the foot of Market street at 10 o'clock last night [illegible]. Twenty men thoroughly cleaned her bottom. The big Indian towed her to an anchorage off Clifton, Staten Island soon after daylight this morning, where she lay all day surrounded by boat loads of spectators anxious to see the American representative yacht. Gen. Paine and Mr. Burgess spent a while down to Sandy Hook in Mr. J. F. Burke's sloop Mischief. The others with the exception of Mr. Welch were at the Brevoort house. Sir Richard Sutton and party remained on board the Genesta at Tompkinsville all day. A race will be sailed over the club course, thirty-eight miles, to-morrow. The start will be at [illegible]:30 o'clock sharp.

RAILROAD NOTES.

MISSOURI PACIFIC CHANGES.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 1[illegible].—A circular was received here from New York to-day bearing the signature of Jay Gould, announcing the resignation of Capt. R. S. Hayes as senior vice president of the Missouri Pacific railway system, the promotion of Col. H. M. Hoxie to fill the vacancy and the abolishment of third vice president which Col. Hoxie has heretofore held.

THE BRAZILIAN COUNTERFEITERS [illegible].

GALVESTON, Sept. 13.—A special to the News from Waco, Texas, says: Theo. A. White, the [illegible] in the Brazilian counterfeit [illegible] brother Joseph H. White, who is held [illegible]. The brothers [illegible] were locked in separate cells. Theo. is talkative but Joseph is reticent. The former is confident of acquittal and says he acted innocently in the counterfeiting scheme, which was planned to defraud the Brazilian government out of $231,000, but is aware that it will be difficult to establish his innocence as he is entirely dependent upon the testimony of a man whom he is to appear against as a witness [illegible] of criminal knowledge. He seems to have no desire to conceal anything connected with the counterfeiting scheme, and his [illegible] to-morrow will probably be very full and [illegible].

POLITICAL EXPRESSIONS.

Minneapolis Tribune: Mr. Hendricks has no right [illegible] Cleveland that the party don't want any fish stories but is yearning for the loaves and fishes themselves.

Philadelphia Press: If this country has ever seen a bigger political humbug than the so-called reform policy of the present administration history has generously declined to mention it.

New York World: On what rule of civil service is a democratic administration bound to retain an army of republicans in office to be thus put under contribution by the republican managers and to contribute to democratic defeat?

Cincinnati Commercial Gazette: The democratic newspapers which so highly commended Cleveland's position on civil service reform when he was a candidate are heartily sick of it now that he is president and cheerfully inform him that the reform must go and the administration return to the old spoils system, and it is returning accordingly.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: There is one matter, however, which interests alike every man engaged in manufacturing or importing. This to put it briefly is the disposition so constantly manifested by the democratic party to tinker with the tariff. For two or three years this meddling has [illegible] that has been shown, and whenever it manifested it, it did harm and nothing but harm.

A Plea for Enlightenment.

Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

It would be edifying if those who are claiming a supposititious improvement in business to be credit of the democratic administration would particularize the act or measure it has taken affecting business in any way whatever. Beyond its devotion to a distribution of the spoils of office we do not recall anything it has done having the least bearing upon the manufacturing or industrial interests of the country. If any one is better informed we should be glad to be enlightened on the subject.

FOREIGN DISPATCHES

A Discovery of Great Interest to Astronomers.

REVIEW OF THE MONEY MARKETS.

Desperate Riot on an Irish Race Track—The Dispute over the Caroline Islands—Yellow Fever in Mexico, Etc.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1[illegible].—The Herald's cable special gives a minute account of a new wonder attracting the attention of astronomers in the constellation of Andromeda. On August 19th the nebula was carefully scanned, but not the slightest signs of a change were observed. The nebula, according to photographs then taken, remained in its ordinary condition of a gigantic agglomeration of faintly glowing stars in which the most powerful telescope could distinguish nothing except [illegible] faintly defined nucleus of nebulæ.

On August [illegible] a new star was seen as a brilliant point near the nucleus, but the great importance of the discovery was not appreciated until this week. Since its sudden birth the star has given constant cause for astronomical gossip on account of irregular habits. Not only has it changed its position in the sky by 10 seconds in one direction and two seconds in another but it also shines with an unsteady flickering orange light, a light new to members of the star family.

The [illegible] correspondent thinks Laplace's conception of an infinitely slow evolution of stars from gaseous nebulæ is jeopardized by this wonderful orb which has sprung from Andromeda's star [illegible].

This new star throws doubt upon the long accepted [illegible] [illegible]. There are indications that it may show [illegible] of its own [illegible] erratic course [illegible] astronomy.

The new-born star was found in the eastern sky, well up from the horizon, as a light point of the eighth magnitude surrounded by a cloud [illegible]. Good opera glasses will clearly show both the [illegible] and the star.

THE BOURSES.

Weekly Review of Business in the Financial Centers of Europe.

LONDON, Sept. 1[illegible].—Withdrawals of gold for Ireland [illegible] increasing the value [illegible] per cent over last week's rates. Three months bills [illegible] and short at [illegible]. [illegible] of the bank of England for the week show a marked diminution. The absorption of capital proceeds rapidly, but a further advance depends greatly on the movement of American exchange. The stock exchange was dull during the week. [illegible] any decided tendency the constant dribble of stock upon the market keeping prices flat. American railroads were depressed throughout the week and quotations mark a decided fall in low priced issues. Wabash, Denver, Erie and Reading recorded sharp speculative sales being pressed on the market. Changes for the week are as follows: Decreases—Central Pacific [illegible], Chicago & St. Paul [illegible], Denver [illegible], Illinois [illegible], Lake Shore [illegible], Louisville [illegible], New York Central [illegible], Erie ordinary [illegible], do second mortgage [illegible], Ontario [illegible], Pennsylvania [illegible], Ohio & Mississippi [illegible], Oregon [illegible], Reading [illegible], do mortgage [illegible], Wabash [illegible]. Increase—Union Pacific.

AT PARIS AND BERLIN.

PARIS, Sept. 13.—After a sharp fall in the beginning of the week caused by fears of a conflict between Germany and Spain, prices recovered and the closing yesterday was nearly at the highest figures of the week, both on the bourse and the petite bourse. Little business is transacted. Suez Canal shows a margin of [illegible] over the lowest price of last week. Large profits were realized [illegible] [illegible] the Spanish difficulty [illegible] or of a fall or unpaid share capital.

BERLIN, Sept. 13.—Business on the bourse was inactive and prices were depressed, operators being impressed with the injustice of the bourse tax which is a constant hindrance to transactions. They are preparing for a renewal of the appeal against the measure. The Spanish difficulty has been without effect [illegible] stocks [illegible]. Transactions between Spanish firms and Germany have been impeded by Spanish demands to recall consignments before accepting drafts. Bank and railway shares have dropped owing to the [illegible].

EUROPEAN POLITICS.

THE CAROLINE ISLANDS DISPUTE.

LONDON, Sept. 1[illegible].—The note of Senor Elduayen, Spanish foreign minister, to Prince Bismarck, claims Spanish sovereignty over the Carolines on the ground of discovery, exploration, missionary work, protection and recognition by the natives, and the existence of Spanish trading posts.

MADRID, Sept. 13.—The German government appears disposed to insist that the dispute concerning the Caroline islands be submitted to arbitration. Spain is negotiating for the purchase of two men of war which are being built in England for the Chinese government. The British vice consul at San Sebastian has offered to protect the German consulate there in the event of another outbreak.

BERLIN, Sept. 1[illegible].—Count Benomar, Spanish ambassador, has received a Spanish courier bearing a complete apology from Spain to Germany for the insults to the German embassy. It is stated that the German steamer Nautilus, which sailed under orders to touch at Corunna and Ferrol, has just been ordered to stop at Plymouth and await instructions. Prince [illegible] will return to Berlin this week.

LONDON, Sept. 1[illegible].—The Daily News' Berlin dispatch says: The Carolines may be already regarded as German property. The entire affair can only terminate with the assertion of German's claims.

WILL RESUME COMMERCIAL NEGOTIATIONS.

RIOT AT RACES.

The Horse and Jockey of an Odious Landlord Mobbed—A Free Fight.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—A cable special says Kilrush on the Shannon, county Clare, Ireland, was the scene of tremendous excitement and rioting yesterday, at the races there for the Kilrush and Clare plates. For several days past bitter complaints have been made through this part of Ireland against obnoxious landlords who devote themselves to horse racing. To-day the following notice was posted in flaming letters in the streets and on fences for miles about: "Men of Clare, Are you going to allow these vile instruments of landlord tyranny, Tom Sheedy and Clancy Martin, who carried their death sentence to so many of our brethren, notably to Mrs. McTeney who perished after her eviction, to run their horses Harkaway and Stella filly in the people's race? If so you share in their infamy. Show your manhood and [illegible] them to prevent it, as the scoundrels are defying you. God save Ireland!"

Thousands who were present at the Limerick races, just ended, arrived here to witness the sport. The race course was lined by enormous crowds of angry men, women and children, yelling and brandishing shillalas, and everybody felt that a big fight was to come off. The owners of the horses about to run resorted to strategy to avoid the vengeance of the populace. Sheedy disguised his horse Harkaway by painting its legs white and its nose jet black, and the rider did not wear his owner's usual colors. In this extraordinary disguise Harkaway started, ran the race and returned to the paddock without any hostile demonstration.

A FREE FIGHT.

Encouraged by the success of this device Mr. Martin disguised his filly in a similar manner, painting her all over a reddish brown. Stella filly was about to start in the last race, but was ridden by Lynch, an unpopular jockey of the county, who was soon recognized by the crowd in spite of the precaution taken to change the racing colors. The filly and rider were at once [illegible] with a storm of groans, hisses and yells. The greatest confusion prevailed at the starting post, and a free fight ensued. The wild scene reached its climax at the first fence, when the jockey and the filly were assailed with sticks and stones. Lynch was knocked off the horse and dragged about on the ground, where the people jumped on him. His head was cut open and he narrowly escaped with his life. Another jockey was struck on the head with a stone which left a large gaping wound. All the jockeys were torn off their horses and kicked and dragged about. A real old-fashioned Irish shindy took place all over the course. Hundreds of heads were smashed. No one was killed. By a curious coincidence Capt. Boycott had a horse running in the same race, and his jockey and animal escaped unharmed by the [illegible].

San Francisco Politicians Excited Over a Rumor.

COWARDLY OUTRAGES IN UTAH.

Arrest of Alleged Dynamiters in New York—A Duel to the Death in Georgia—The Mollie Maguires again Active.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 1[illegible].—Politicians are all astir investigating a rumor that Ex-Governor Johnson had been appointed to the collectorship of the port. The fact that Mr. Johnson had flatly contradicted the rumor, and that Col. John P. Irish had expressed his belief that there was nothing in it did not entirely allay the suspicion that the report may have had some foundation in fact. The stir occasioned by the rumor showed how timid politicians are at present and how naturally the shadow of Judge Field oppresses them with deep meditation when it appears to fall in the direction of any fat federal office. Judge Field having gone East the rumor that Mr. Johnson had been preferred above all other aspiring partisans of every shade of democracy came as a reminder that the eminent jurist who is absent was still amid the California democracy in spirit at least.

CRIMINAL CALENDAR.

ARREST OF ALLEGED DYNAMITERS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1[illegible].—The windows of the dry goods store of Garry Bros., Grand and Allen streets, were shattered by an explosion of dynamite February [illegible] and the explosion was supposed to have been instigated by disaffected dry goods clerks. Detectives have been at work on the case ever since, and their labors have resulted in the arrest of Peter Daly, aged 23, residing in [illegible]; Thomas Fitzpatrick, 27 years old, bookkeeper, living at 61 Monroe street, and David Naughton, aged [illegible], salesman, No. [illegible] Monroe street.

A combination of dry goods clerks known as the Equality association holds its meetings at Orchard hall, a saloon kept by Morris Kersten at [illegible] Orchard street. It was suspected that one or more members of the [illegible] family knew much about the crime. Sometime after the explosion a stranger began to frequent Kersten's saloon and finally [illegible] from the sons of the proprietor the fact that they had heard threats that Garry Bros. should be blown up the same as the dynamiters [illegible] the parliament house.

On the [illegible] entered the saloon and [illegible] one of the Kersten boys a package and asked him to give it to David J. Naughton, who was [illegible]. Presently Naughton came down stairs [illegible] Daly and Fitzpatrick. Naughton asked if a parcel had been left for him and the package was handed over. Naughton and his companions then went out, followed however by David and Frank Kersten. Naughton and his companions proceeded to Garry Bros.' store where the Kerstens saw them place something beside the window sill, after which Daly and Naughton ran away, while Fitzpatrick walked from the spot and was knocked down by the terrific explosion that immediately followed. [illegible] details resulted in the arrest of the men, who have waived examination. The penalty upon conviction is ten years.

A DUEL TO THE DEATH.

[illegible], GA., Sept. 1[illegible].—Wm. Whitley and Tip Bell, negroes, fought a duel in a grove behind a negro church in Dooly county, of which both were members. The two men had long been [illegible] of the same woman and each one believed the other [illegible]. Thursday night Whitley called on the woman and a little later Bell dropped in. In the quarrel which ensued the men agreed to go to the grove and fight a duel [illegible]. [illegible] each other by the left hand and using pocket knives with the right, they set to slashing [illegible]. The screams of the woman attracted a number of colored folks, who stood around and looked at the bloody [illegible] until both men lay exhausted, one in the throes of death and the other in a dying condition. The excitement of the negroes was now directed against the woman, and many urged that she should be lynched.

THE MOLLIE MAGUIRES REORGANIZING.

Sheriff Beall went to a saloon to arrest a man named Fugate for carrying a pistol. Gus Gilbert, a friend of Fugate, began firing, and shot Beall twice. Marshall Murray came to Beall's assistance and shot Fugate twice. The firing then became general. Murray received a slight wound. Beall is fatally wounded and Fugate seriously injured, the wounds of the others being slight. Gilbert and Fugate are being [illegible] and the excitement runs high.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 13.—About 10 o'clock last night Pat Kernan, a well known ward politician, entered the store of his uncle Thomas Kernan in the eastern portion of the city and soon began a quarrel which ended in his drawing his pistol and shooting the old man, who died in a short time. Pat, who is known as "King of the Ward," is a noted rough, and has been through numerous shooting scrapes, but his political influence has always gotten him clear.

The Oregonian.

PORTLAND, MONDAY, SEPT 14, 1885

NOT IGNORANCE, BUT COLOR.

One who writes in the Standard over the initials "T. T. C.," quotes from THE OREGONIAN of August 17, to this effect: "A republic that rests on an ignorant suffrage cannot possess the promise of stability," and adds: "This being true, why is it that THE OREGONIAN so continuously sheds crocodile tears because the South will not allow the ignorant negroes to vote?" This is descanted upon at some length, and the writer evidently supposes he has done a fine thing.

There is a short way of dealing with this superfine argument. If it is "ignorant suffrage" that the South objects to, why is not the objection urged against ignorant white suffrage as well as ignorant black suffrage? The census of the United States supplies some information as to illiteracy in the South that is pertinent here.

In the sixteen Southern states there were, in 1880, 3,042,444 colored persons above ten years of age, and in the same states 1,672,931 whites above ten years of age, who could not read and write. That is, the illiterate whites in the South are more than one half as numerous as the illiterate blacks. If ignorance, then, is to exclude men from the exercise of the suffrage, it should cut off in the Southern states more than half as many white men as black men.

The objection, then, in the South to the black man as a voter is not based on the fact that he is ignorant, but on the fact that he is black. And, as might be expected, the most relentless opponents of the exercise of political rights by the black man are these hundreds of thousands of white voters who are as ignorant as the black man is, and whose ignorance is far more hopeless and dangerous, because it is based on prejudices at once vicious, violent and incurable. This is that "ignorant suffrage" which most strenuously upheld slavery, which was a solid force for secession and rebellion, which stands most firmly now in opposition to equal rights, and is the principal instrument in keeping the so-called "Southern question" everlastingly open.

It is entirely safe to assume that the writer in the [illegible] is one of those likewise who object to equal suffrage, as fixed in the constitution of the United States, not because the black man is ignorant, but simply because he is black; that it shocks his prejudices as much to see a colored man, of highest intelligence and learning, at the polls as to see the least intelligent and most ignorant one offer his ballot; and that his instinct all the time is to declare that "this is a white man's government, and that 'no nigger' has a right to any participation in it." This, indeed, is the undertone of his letter, and it reflects the dominant sentiment of the democratic party, north as well as south. But what else is one to expect from those who fought at every step even the abolition of slavery? They naturally think the thoughts and speak the language which their advocacy of slavery taught them.

The majority of white men at the South, brought up in or inheriting these ideas, are to this day unable to conceive why any political or even any civil right should be conferred upon the colored man. From any just conception of the principle of equal rights, "without regard to race, color, or previous condition of servitude," they are at an immeasurable intellectual distance. Conceding the abolition of slavery since the work of arms is a resistless physical fact, they have held ever since the war and still hold that any further guarantee of rights to the colored man was a direct assault upon themselves. Hence, as soon as they had recovered a little from the paralysis of the utter defeat in war, they set themselves at work to nullify the colored man's rights as conferred by the laws of congress and by the amendments to the constitution of the United States. Granting the fact of liberty, they see no reason why it should give the colored man the right to testify against the white man in the courts of justice; why it should change the rules of law that had been enforced hitherto, or modify the presumptions that had borne so hardly upon the colored man while he was a slave; why it should give him the right to enter the jury box, to pass from place to place without permission, or to exercise any privilege that had not been his during the period of slavery. Still less could they understand why it should give him the right to hold the ballot. This has been the whole story of southern politics since the war, and it accounts for the suppression of the colored vote and for that political entity known as the Solid South. The objection to the possession and exercise of the right to vote by the colored race does not rest then on the fact that many of its members are ignorant, for there is no objection to the enormous mass of white ignorance that holds the ballot, but on the simple dogma that the "nigger" ought not to be permitted to vote at all.

The way out of this, the only way, is through education, and the southern white needs it as much as the southern black. And, indeed, even more; for it is far easier to teach the blacks to read and write, to obey the laws and to perform the duties of humble citizenship, than it is to eradicate from the minds of the whites ideas that are utterly at variance with the principles of equality for all men at the ballot box and before the law. And these are the fundamental principles of the American republic.

THE [illegible] CUP.

The [illegible] published a pretty full description of the two yachts that are to contend at New York for the prize known as the queen's cup. The article also furnished a brief account of former contests for the cup, including [illegible] when the cup was won from the English by the yacht "America." The general interest taken in the subject justifies us in [illegible] particulars, viz:

The cup, which [illegible] $500, was presented by Queen Victoria to the Royal Yacht club in 1851. It [illegible] sailed for at Cowes in the Isle of Wight. The queen herself was present to see the race, in which eighteen boats started, one of which was Commodore Stevens' schooner-rigged America. The Englishmen were not particularly afraid of the America, for at that time English builders believed that they had a monopoly of the art of building fast boats, and the lines of the Yankee skimming dish set at the accepted canons of that art as understood in English yards, [illegible] the American yacht won, and won in such fashion that, as the signal master at the time informed the queen, "there was no second." The America, still afloat, is now the property of Gen. B. F. Butler. He has been anxious that she should once more be allowed to compete for the honor of her country and the trophy which she won so handsomely thirty-five years ago. But by the new conditions under which the cup must be competed for only one masted boats are allowed to enter for the race, and the old victor therefore finds herself barred. The cup was presented in 1857 by Commodore Stevens to the New York Yacht club, in whose possession it has remained ever since, in spite of several attempts on the part of British owners to take it back to England. Whether they will succeed this time any better than heretofore will soon be determined.

Popular approval of the efforts to establish a cremation society in Detroit, Mich., has been so marked that it is now thought possible to change the original plan of organization. At first it was proposed to establish an initiation fee of $50, which would entitle the members to incineration at death, if desired by him and his relatives, free of further cost. Now it is thought possible that a society may be formed strong enough to build a crematory, to be located in Detroit. Upon the strength of the possibility architects have been commissioned to prepare plans and estimates for a crematory to cost $10,000 to $15,000.

The demand for "Uncle Tom's Cabin" is still as heavy as for almost any of the most noted fresh books on the market. A new edition of 25,000 copies has just been issued by Houghton, Mifflin & Co. The author's profits from the sales are still very large.

THE NEW MINES.

Those who will read the letters from the Pine creek mines furnished by a member of THE OREGONIAN'S staff and printed in the issues of Saturday and to-day need no longer be in doubt as to the situation and possibilities of the new discovery. Granite mountain, in which the gold and silver bearing quartz ledges have been found, is one of a great number of peaks which give to the northeastern part of the state its mountainous character. It is situated in Union county, ten miles west of Snake river, which marks the line of division between Oregon and Idaho, thirty-eight miles from Baker City, in a direct line, and about the same distance southeast from the town of Union. The mines are still in the hands of the discoverers, who are poor men and unable to do more than scratch the surface and to show what may lie, and what in all likelihood does lie, in the depths of the mountain. Development has not gone beyond the prospecting stage, but the indications all but prove that the deposits of ore are rich and extensive. Right here the work of the prospectors must stop, for further development is a job requiring capital.

And now what is Portland going to do? Is she going to sit still and allow San Francisco or Omaha to open these mines which lie at her own door and enjoy the profits of production and of trade which will (if they prove rich) flow from them? We hope not, and we imagine not. But there is some danger, and it is because of this danger that we urge our financial and business interests to a prompt course at this early stage. There is some risk in opening up mines, which possibly may not turn out as expected, but it is small, and there is some risk in every sort of business. If Portland does not seize this opportunity, her rivals will do it. We have not precise knowledge of how such enterprises are worked elsewhere, but something after the following general model would do what is needed to be done. An organization should be formed in the interest of Portland with a capital of say $50,000, of which $25,000 should be paid in at once. Some of this money should be spent in securing an interest in three or four of the mines and the rest in sinking shafts and in fitting up a reduction mill. It is not likely that the second $25,000 would be called for, for whether the mines are permanent or not a mill would yield money from the day it started by the reduction of surface rock now on the "dumps" of Granite mountain. The interest attaching to a local enterprise of this kind would turn the trade of the mines this way and make Portland their general depot. If the mines should develop well, Portland would be first on the ground, and first to turn the advantages to account.

But first there must be a road to the mines, and it is important for Portland and for Oregon that the terminus of that road should be as far as possible from Omaha and as near as possible to Portland. Independent of railroad schemes, which are in the future and dependent upon the development of the district, there is a proposition by the Short Line management to put a boat on Snake river connecting with their trains at the crossing to carry freight to a point on the river twenty miles from the mines. This scheme is in the interest of Omaha and if it succeeds Omaha will profit and Portland will lose by it. Wagon roads are proposed from Baker City, from North Powder and from Union, and from each of these points it is said that a road can be put in shortening the distance (now not less than seventy miles by any route), to about forty-five miles. Whichever of these three propositions will be best for Portland our people should help and help substantially. The road whose terminus on the railroad is nearest Portland is the one most favorable to our interests, all things else being equal. The board of trade, so we learn, proposes to send an expert to examine the proposed routes with a view to helping build one of them. Action should be prompt. Whichever route Portland selects and aids will be opened and the others will be dropped if there be no delay. We trust that the matter will be acted upon by the board of trade at its meeting to-night.

A Cleveland paper states that a civil engineer of that city, just from Panama, reports unmistakable indications that the money for work on the ship canal is giving out, and that a general collapse is threatened in consequence of the cost of the work so far exceeding the estimates. Operations are on a far less extended scale than formerly, not nearly so many men are employed, and there is a marked decrease of energy in the management. A drawback not taken much into account by the French engineers was the prevalence of heavy rains during the long rainy season. There are few places in the world where the rain descends in such torrents as on the isthmus of Panama. The dirt has been washed back in immense quantities into the canal, and slides have occurred all along the line. At Culibra, where the canal has to be cut 300 feet in depth through the center cut, the rain has washed back rocks, mud and debris, and the work of cutting through the hard limestone is delayed in consequence. Engineers estimate that it will take at least ten years to finish this cut, with no drawbacks. The general feeling at the isthmus is that the canal will never be completed by the French company, and it is doubtful if American capital could be induced to finish the work, because of the insecurity due to frequent revolutions, from climatic and other causes.

The statement has been widely circulated that immigration to the United States has fallen off greatly during the past few years, but figures do not bear out this supposition, especially when decades are compared. From 1841 to 1851 the immigration was 1,4[illegible]7,337; from 1851 to 1860 it was 2,[illegible]; from 1861 to 1870 it was 2,045,821; from 1871 to 1880 it was 2,7[illegible]. During the five years from 1881 to 1885 the total has reached almost 3,[illegible]. During the past year the number has fallen off somewhat in consequence of general commercial depression, but the decade will show an enormous gain.

Indianapolis is in the throes of a liquor contest. The democrats have renominated Thomas Cottrell, present police commissioner, whose official action has always been devoted to the interests of the liquor men and who have constantly embarrassed the police in their efforts to execute the laws that hamper the saloon keepers. "The city is at present so absolutely under the control of the saloon influence as to prevent the enforcement of so small a license tax as $100. The effort will be to defeat Cottrell, the [illegible] is not hopeful.

When the New York Times says that the republican party, if it would have the support of the independents, must not protest against electoral outrages in the South and must not insist that the South shall live up to the constitution and laws, it certainly does not speak for any great body of independents, or, if it does, however large the number may be, the republican party will have greater strength without them. Unless a political party have moral courage it can have no real strength.

The San Francisco Alta, in a comprehensive article on the grape product, shows that California has an area of planted vineyards covering [illegible] acres. In 1884 the grapes sold for market were 54,0[illegible]227 pounds. In the same year 114,[illegible] boxes of raisins were made and 11,[illegible] gallons of wine. The estimates are taken from official returns.

The socialists at Chicago turn out in processions, with banners, every Sunday. "We are starving and homeless," was one of the inscriptions carried in the procession of Sunday, September 6th. When they got out to the park their beer supply however, was abundant.

"I see Grove is still up in the woods," remarked Si Slipshod.

"Fishin', I suppose," chimed in Rube Rations. "Wonder if he's ketchin' much?"

GRANITE MOUNTAIN.

Second Letter from the Oregonian's Special Correspondent.

The "Indications" Reviewed—Opportunities for Developing the Mines and General Facts Concerning them

PINE CREEK CAMP, 5th of Sept.

Gold is where you find it. About mining camps there is always much talk of hard and soft "formations," "guange matter," "foot-walls," "hanging-walls," and the like, but after all is said nobody can fix by the presence or absence of these signs the location of hidden gold. Nobody can see into the ground deeper than the point of a pick and no man knows what his next stroke may bring forth. The quartz ledges of Granite mountain may extend to the innermost bowels of the earth or be mere shallow wedges in the mountain side. They may continue rich in minerals or they may turn to lead or to barren rock. Absolutely nobody can know in advance of deeper operations, but there are certain conditions which indicate that the ore bodies are extensive and that they are uniformly rich. The mountain side is not a smooth and uniform surface, but boldly rugged with sharp projections and deep recesses. The ledges, each in its course, can be traced along this broken front as distinctly in the recesses as in the projections. This certainly indicates depth. The richness of the rock at different depths on the surface line indicates that the rock is continuously valuable. The length of the seams, laterally as they may be traced on the mountain side, clearly enough indicates quantity. Another fact, important in this connection, is that Granite mountain is a feature of a general mineral district. Pine creek at its base and above and below affords good placer diggings. Gold and silver bearing quartz has been found in the mountains round about it. The whole country for a hundred miles on every side is mineral country—gold country. These are the signs—form your own opinions.

As stated in a former letter, the ore is, generally speaking, base, and the chief value is the sulphurets. There is a little, and but a very little free gold. While the rock is of a character easily worked in the ledge it is not what miners call free milling ore. Efforts to reduce it with an arastra have practically failed, though not without some return of free gold. It is evident that reduction, when it is properly done, must be by an ordinary modern stamp mill with a chlorinizing attachment. A mining expert from California now examining the mines, speaking of this matter to me yesterday, made the following very significant remark: "As the ledges go deeper they appear to grow baser, and I should not be surprised if it were a smelting proposition in the end."

As yet no water has been encountered, but the many streams (fed by springs) flowing down the mountain sides are suggestive of subterranean water veins. Water must certainly be a factor in the case a little further down but it never can be a serious embarrassment because the situation of the ledges will make drainage easy and perfect.

The opportunities for milling could not be better. The creek bottom is sufficiently wide for all operations, with room to spare, and there is water enough, both in the main and tributary streams to run any number of stamps. Timber (white and yellow fir, tamarack and pine) is abundant and water is everywhere. To one like myself who is neither a miner nor an engineer, it looks as if a road up the mountain side to the ledges were an impossibility, but I hear it said that a good road could be made by following the mountain grades for comparatively little money. This may be true, but I believe that the best mill locations are on the creek bottom, where the rock as taken from the mines could be dropped down through shutes.

At this time the cost of getting in heavy machinery would be considerable. The freight rate from Baker City to the mines is two and a half cents per pound, and it is not high. To Pine valley from Baker the charge is one cent, and from there to the camp, twelve miles, it is one and a quarter cents. The last five miles of the road is all but impassable, and the best teams carry in less than 1000 pounds, and can make but one trip in a day.

In a letter written at Baker City the day before starting in I said, if I remember rightly, that I should devote to examination of the mines all the industry that the job might require. I little knew what I was promising. Industry is a weak and insufficient word. I pass over the stage trip for the present to the climb up the mountain to the ledges. The country is rough beyond my power of description. Imagine the Columbia river between the upper and lower cascades to be a heavily timbered space with the surrounding mountains as they are and you have a tolerably fair picture of the location of this camp. The mountains tower above till they appear almost to lean over. The ledges are in the Granite mountain, to the west, buried in sky above as you look up from the camp. The trip to them is a climb from the start, and much of the way is dangerous as well as steep. But once on the mountain, the toils of getting here are forgotten in the rapture of the situation. As one advances slowly and painfully the surroundings change as if by magic. The lowland trees give place to mountain pines, a little higher and the pines are straight and slender and covered with a moss to their tops, giving the mountain side the appearance of a giant hop field. Higher, the pines are stunted and twisted till they look like orchard trees, and still higher the granite reaches bald and white up into the summer clouds. Oh, the glory of the view. It is a thing not to be told. No description can lift a reader into the heavens, nor intoxicate his senses with grandeur till he seems a soaring atom high above the earth.

As I stood near the summit yesterday afternoon in a bath of perspiration from the labor of climbing, there came just above me a flash and then a crash that made the mountain tremble. Another and still another followed, the scene grew dark and down came—the snow. In ten minutes there was a complete change from summer to winter. In its main pile Granite mountain reaches down to the creek level in an almost perpendicular wall white as snow. Across its face, two thirds of the way toward the summit, there runs a series of upright dykes standing up straight and looking like the broken walls of a great castle. Down this white mountain side I climbed with a companion. It was dangerous, of course, and the strain on our nerves was terrible. A passage of this sort gives one a new respect for the hardy and bold prospectors who are now scattered over this and other mountains seeking out the precious gold.

The mines of Granite mountain are in the hands of their discoverers. Not a single "prospect" has changed hands. Three or four mines have been bonded, and for large sums, but so far as I can learn the parties are not responsible and have left no pledges which will bind them to their bargains. The prospectors hold their properties at tremendous figures. They talk not about thousands of dollars, but about tens and even hundreds of thousands. Every claim holder and there are scores of them, imagines himself fixed for life as a man of fortune. Unquestionably, their figures are too high. Practical men, capitalists will not pay forty, fifty or a hundred thousand dollars for a hole in the ground in a region whose permanent mineral character is yet to be proved. It is out of the question. I am not writing in the interest of capitalists, but in the interests of the country and of the miners. There will be no development to speak of till "prospects" can be bought at prospect prices. And yet, I ought to say to those who may think of investing that persons who thus far have talked about buying are as poor as those who have mines to sell. I imagine that a man with $10,000 in money in his pocket (spot cash, to borrow a commercial term) could buy all or a controlling interest in almost any mine on the mountain. I give this simply as an opinion.

The camp on the creek is composed of two towns, about half a mile apart. Cornucopia is the larger, with about thirty log huts and one small board house, and Allentown is the other, with about twenty houses of like character. They are built in and under the dense woods and are finely supplied with cold, pure mountain water. These towns have all the characteristic features of a mining camp, excepting that their population is small. There are perhaps five hundred men in the district, but they are scattered far and wide in the mountains and the camp keepers number not more than sixty. They are orderly in the main and in my three days in camp I saw not a single outrage upon law, good order or decency. No money has been taken from the mines, nor can there be until mills are set up. All the money in the camp has been brought here so there is little money to spend even for necessities, much less for the customary "hell-raising" of new mining settlements. Saloons are numerous and drinks are a bit. There is as yet no general store, but two or three small stocks of supplies furnish flour, bacon, boots, picks and frying pans at prices only a little above those of the other eastern Oregon towns situated off the railroad. Eating houses furnish indifferent "grub" at fifty cents per meal, and lodging, not the nicest in the world, costs the same. It is a cheap camp and business of all kinds appears to be in honest hands.

Until mills are introduced there will be no employment in the camp for labor. Rates of wages are $2 50 per day for common labor and $3 and $3 50 for miners and carpenters, but there is little to do and a great many to do it. There are more men in the mines now seeking work than can find work to do. The mines are of a sort which yield nothing to individual laborers. Just now it is a good camp for a poor man to keep away from. There are no Chinamen in the camp. A few came in early in the summer, but the miners held an indignation meeting and declared that the Chinese must go. They evidently meant business and the Chinese went. The miners declare that in the future, as in the past, no Chinese need apply.

In its present undeveloped condition this is not a good winter camp. The country is elevated and is usually many feet under snow during four or five months. In the canyon where Cornucopia and Allentown stand the snow is from four to ten feet deep on a level. The situation here is so surrounded and sheltered by mountains that there is little or no wind and no drifts. The road down to Pine Valley (only six miles) could easily be kept clear, and I imagine it will not be allowed to become impassable even if there are no efforts to introduce machinery. It would be easier to carry machinery into the camp by sleds on a snow road than over the villainous trail which now serves as a wagon road.

But this is enough for to-day—more to-morrow.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

ROBBED BY MASKED MEN.—The burglary in the dwelling of Michael Griffin on S street, between Eighteenth and Nineteenth, which occurred about 1 o'clock Saturday morning was entirely out of the beaten path followed by criminals. Griffin owns a little grocery store, with a dwelling attached, and he had left home about bedtime for the purpose of going to the Campbell-Reilly fight, leaving his wife alone She fearing to remain in the dark lighted a lamp in the store, also in the dwelling, and went to sleep. She was awakened by three masked men, who had entered through a rear window One of them presented a revolver to her face and demanded that she deliver over whatever money there was in the house. Frightened almost to death she handed the man $85 which was concealed in her bed. He continued to keep guard over her while the two others ransacked the house, opened the trunks, etc, but took nothing, because they could find nothing in small bulk Two of the men were very tall and the third above medium hight and slender From the tones of her voice Mrs. Griffin thinks the smallest of the three was a woman It is supposed that Griffin, when he left home, went to some saloon and got drunk on beer. Some one probably bantered him for a bet and he got out of it by saying he had left his money at home This, however, is only a theory A robbery of this sort in the limits of Portland is remarkable though the house is in the outskirts, near the North Pacific manufacturing company's works The nearest house is about 100 feet distant.

HOW A FENCE WAS SMASHED —For the benefit of the numerous persons who have paused to look at the gap in the handsome fence on the Mill street side of W K Smith's residence and to wonder what tore down the two strands of barbed wire and smashed the fence, it is hereby announced that the damage was done by a horse One of the Third street car drivers while changing his horse to the front of the car at Caruthers street, allowed the single-tree to touch the heels of the animal, which at once started off, dragging the lines out of his hand The frightened brute ran down Third street at full speed, the single-tree banging against its heels for some distance, until one end was broken off He tried to turn up Mill street, but was going so fast he could not turn the corner, so came up to Mr Smith's fence about a rod west of Third street and endeavored to leap it, but came down on the barbed wires, tearing one from its fastenings and hung on to the other until it was cut, when he was released The poor beast was badly cut by the barbed wire and his hind legs injured by the singletree, but he will probably soon be able to take his place on the line again.

A BOY HORSE THIEF —Joel Hulbard, the lad awaiting trial for horse stealing in Union county, attempted to escape from the custody of the sheriff on Tuesday, says the Mountain Sentinel. He had been allowed the freedom of the jail yard under a promise that he would not go outside without permission Tuesday he went over to Sheriff Saunders' house about dinner time The sheriff asked him to have dinner, but he said he was not hungry The boy then returned to the jail yard When Sheriff Saunders returned to his office he could not see the boy around Search revealed the fact that the boy's coat and hat were gone, and it was evident that he had escaped Pursuit was instituted and deputy sheriff Cates being sent, overtook the boy at North Powder, on Wednesday while at dinner, which he begged The boy undertook to draw a revolver which he stole from a drawer in the sheriff's office, but he was quickly silenced and returned to jail, where he will stay He said he was on his way afoot to his home in Kansas, and had taken the pistol and cartridges to kill game for food on the road

NEW MARKET FOR LUMBER —On Saturday the Union Pacific Railroad company closed a contract with the Willamette Steam Mills Lumbering and Manufacturing company (Weidler's mill) for 100,000 ties, to be delivered at Albina It is well known that no better timber can be found for ties than Oregon fir The Union Pacific company will probably become large buyers of lumber in this city About six months ago George Weidler called on the general superintendent at Omaha and asked him whether he would not like to sample some Oregon fir for freight cars The answer was a derisive smile No doubt if Weidler had called the timber by its book name, Abies Douglasii, he would have made better headway, but it is very doubtful whether he ever heard of any other than its every day name He was politely referred to the master mechanic, who proved a skeptic. Weidler was persistent, and finally got consent for them to give our fir a trial in three freight cars The result is an order for 100,000 feet of lumber, with good chances for a great deal more

SLIGHT FIRES YESTERDAY —About noon yesterday Chief Engineer Morgan went into Wagner's barbershop in the Esmond hotel block and after sitting there sometime, his attention was called to some smoke in the rear of the room, issuing through the floor Examination showed that fire was smouldering under a stove used for heating water It had been placed too near the floor The chief telephoned for the hook and ladder company cut into the floor and put out the fire with Babcock extinguishers One of the joists had burned nearly half through At 11 15 last night an alarm was turned in from box 12 by special officer Wood, who is temporarily on Watson's beat. It was occasioned by the explosion of a lamp in Kong Sing Chung's store on Alder street, between Second and Third streets Burning oil was scattered in all directions, but the occupants of the store had "sabe" enough to smother the flames with blankets Damage less than $20, insured

ENOUGH ANSWERS RECEIVED —A large number of letters have been received by THE OREGONIAN in reply to a request for information in regard to forest trees Enough have been received to furnish fully the information desired To all who have kindly taken the trouble to write THE OREGONIAN returns thanks and is happy in the consciousness that its request has been so liberally responded to The latest information on the subject comes from a correspondent at Montesano W T, who states the Picea Sitchensis or tide land spruce, commonly known here as Abies Menziesii, was named in honor of Dr Archibald Menzies, who was surgeon and botanist in Vancouver's exploring expedition about the end of the last century, and who died in 1842.

RUN OVER BY A RACE HORSE.—On the last day of the races at the Southwest Oregon Agricultural fair in Coos county, one of the horses flew the track and ran over T W Crook of Ellensburg, Curry county, a gentleman 70 years old, who had his head cut, some of his teeth knocked out and his left shoulder broken besides being badly shaken up generally Mr Crook's back was toward the horse which came upon him so quickly that he had no chance of escape Owing to his advanced age and the severe shock to his system the chances for his full recovery are not of the best

WANTED IN UNITED STATES COURT —J W Fuller was brought down from Salem by deputy marshal Hull to stand upon the old familiar charge of selling liquor to an Indian Fuller, however, varied the usual course of such cases when arraigned before the United States commissioner by pleading not guilty and demanding a lawyer This took considerable time, the examination being delayed until this afternoon The result, however, was the same and Fuller is now locked up in the county jail in common with half a dozen others awaiting the return of Judge Deady from California

OVER SUPPLY OF WATERMELONS —The agreeable change in the weather has done much to assuage the parching thirst of our citizens for watermelons, and the consequence is that huge piles of this delicious fruit are accumulating in our commission houses They are principally from Rogue river valley, and while they are preferred by some to The Dalles melon, they did not get into the market so early and are not likely to prove so profitable to the producers

WILL PLEAD GUILTY —A Hunter, who has been indicted for an assault with a dangerous weapon having brutally beaten a Chinaman over the head with a rock, has announced it as his intention to plead guilty when arraigned to-morrow before Judge Stearns in department No 2 of the state circuit court He undoubtedly hopes to get off with a light fine as he has heretofore done in the many cases of assault and battery in which he has figured

OPERA COMPANY INCORPORATED — It is reported that a stock company has been organized to manage the Casino opera house in the future, and to furnish new attractions in the operatic line during the coming winter The capital stock is stated to be $,000, and the incorporators are A S Gross, Ward Stevens and Charles Bruh It is suggested that the first opera produced be "The Last of the Mohicans" with a Flathead as the "hyas tyee"

THE RACES OFF —Owing to the continued unsettled weather all the races announced for City View park have been declared off, likewise the pools. Money invested in pools will be refunded in full at the Crystal Palace to-night, commencing at 7 o'clock, including those on the half mile dash between Rogue, Blue Mountain Belle and Lady Muy which was declared a dead heat

BURIED WITH MILITARY HONORS — The funeral of John Winters, who died at St. Vincent's hospital from the effects of a necessary surgical operation, took place yesterday from the Catholic cathedral, under the auspices of the Grand Army of the Republic, and was very largely attended The body was buried with military honors, a platoon of soldiers firing three volleys over the grave after the coffin was lowered into its last resting place

SPRINTER MASQUERADING.—Ryan, the foot racer, was taken to the fair of the Southwestern Oregon Agricultural association by some Douglas county sports. He is masquerading under the name of Waters. Unfortunately for the success of their scheme his identity was discovered and the good folk at the fair saved their money It's an old rule in horse racing, that holds good as regards sprinters, never to bet against a stranger

WILL UNDOUBTEDLY RECOVER.—Fred Winkleman, the half-witted cowboy and horse thief who set fire to the Baker City jail, burning to death all the inmates except himself, is now slowly recovering from his burns Although he is so emaciated and weak that he can scarcely walk, there is but little doubt of his ultimate recovery It is probable that the next grand jury will indict Winkleman for the murder of his fellow prisoners

MURDER PREVENTED —Prineville has not been keeping up its customary record on shooting episodes, but last Thursday Wm Brown had some words with Ed Evans, a saloon keeper, whereupon the latter picked up a shotgun from behind the bar and fired at Evans. A bystander knocked up the muzzle of the gun thus preventing the usual murder item from this flourishing eastern Oregon town

"PRIZE FIGHTERS" PULLED.

A "Bunko" Contest at Joe Taylor's Stopped by the Police

Lively Scene Last Night at a "Sporting Parlor"—A Scared Crowd Smash a Partition—Pugilistic Notes.

About 9 o'clock last night an alleged contest with soft gloves was begun by Frank Silva, an ex-convict, and Jeff Harlan, known around town as the "off wheeler." It was at Joe Taylor's "sporting parlors," corner Front and Alder streets. He occupies a large room, which is divided into two apartments, by a wooden partition reaching half-way to the ceiling The front room is the saloon, and the larger room in the rear is fitted with a regulation prize ring This loafer, Silva, is a giant in size, and was run in by the police about a fortnight ago as a vagrant. His principal occupation since he last got out from behind the bars is to set himself up as a prize fighter, make some "sucker" believe that he is a prize fighter, get the greeny to back him and then lose the fight, dividing the greeny's money between himself and "antagonist." Some three weeks ago he got a southern Oregon galoot to back him for $900, and "fought" with Harlan, losing by a foul The "contest" occurred at Joe Taylor's

Last night's "fight" was the same sort of a bunko game, except that the amount was smaller It was with soft gloves, very soft ones, regular pillows Silva found another sucker who put up $100 and a like amount was put up by Harlan An admission of twenty five cents was charged, and the room was packed with spectators Silva is nearly twice as large as Harlan, and they "rough and tumbled" it for a few minutes, when Silva pulled off his glove and tapped Harlan with his bare hand The "referee" declared that Silva had lost by a foul.

At this juncture the head of a policeman was seen to protrude through the transom, and now, how changed the scene! The police had been informed that there would be a fight and a raid on the place was ordered Policeman James went into the bar room and tried to go through into the back room, but found the door locked Assisted by policemen Elwanger, Hickey, Harkelroad, Young, Branch and Austin, who were standing on Alder street, near the side door, he climbed to the transom and then dropped inside. As soon as his blue coat with brass buttons hove in sight, jeewhillikens! what a rush there was The crowd as one man made for the barroom, and the pressure on the wooden partition was so great that it fell with a crash, carrying down pictures and smashing glassware The noise of the fall, the tramp of hurrying feet over the debris, the rush of the crowd out of the front doors, the scattering up and down street with yells and oaths made such a disturbance as has not been heard for many a day But Policeman James caught Silva and held him and took him to the city jail A few minutes later Harlan who had escaped with the crowd, came to headquarters and surrendered himself A charge of disorderly by fighting was booked against them Joe Taylor put up $ 0 for each of them and they were released

Taylor was arrested for keeping a disorderly house, and put up $25 for his appearance today. He raged around like a mad bull, and talked like a fool about suing the city for damages caused by the crowd smashing his partition District Attorney Gearin called at police headquarters later in the evening, and asked that a charge of assault and battery be booked against Harlan and Silva. Mr. Gearin proposes that no prize fighting shall take place in Multnomah county if he can help it.

Some of Reilly's friends insisted that he was drugged before the fight on Saturday, supporting the charge with the argument that any man who had his wits about him, would have made a better defense A sporting man who stood within two feet of Duncan McDonald at the fight, stated to an OREGONIAN reporter that Campbell did not strike a blow that was not directed by his trainer Just before time was called, McDonald whispered to Dave, "Give it to him just above the heart and there is where the first blow landed "That lick," said the sporting man, "practically settled the fight I am as certain as can be that it absolutely sickened Reilly"

A burlesque of the Campbell Reilly prize fight set the audience at the Tivoli wild with laughter last night. Campbell was personated by an Irishman, while a negro acted as the tumbling Reilly All the principal incidents of the fight were gone through again Supes in the wings called for rival candidates for referee, Campbell walked excitedly around the ring, Reilly bantered his opponent for a bet, and finally the pugilists faced each other and time was called Each man was armed with huge bladders, and "Campbell" would skip up to "Reilly" and hit him a resounding whack on the jaw with one of these "Reilly" would go to grass with a dazed didn't know you was-going-to-hit-me look, and his seconds would drag him into his corner and run a long necked bottle down his throat This performance was rapidly repeated a dozen times, until "Campbell" finally rubbed his hands upon his pantaloons and then hit "Reilly" with both bladders That settled the latter, and the sponge went up and the curtain went down amid loud applause and great hilarity

Reilly, the ex prize fighter, was around town last night and called in at Joe Taylor's saloon, He had one eye in mourning one ear in a sling and one cheek big enough for two He was not received with an ovation It is not proper to strike a man when he is down but since Reilly has come up smiling once more to be knocked over like a sack of bran THE OREGONIAN will give him a bit of advice Mr Reilly, eschew fighting and prize fighters for the remainder of your life. Don't be seen among them, but acquire a long handled shovel or fork and hie away to some spot where there are ditches to be digged and manure to be pitched and try to make yourself useful instead of ornamental You exhibited some sand in standing up to be knocked down as long as you were able and in case you object to honest labor you might be utilized to fill a bag for fighters to practice on In such a position only can you ever hope to associate with fighting men

It is stated on good authority that Jack Dempsey, of San Francisco is very anxious to meet Dave Campbell, and that Dave will accommodate him provided Dempsey will fight within four weeks, so that he will not have to go through another training. Dempsey has written to a friend in this city that he will leave San Francisco for Portland on the [illegible] inst He is a light weight, but having whipped every [illegible] light weight [illegible] will [illegible] middle weights

A remedy was suggested Saturday for the cow trouble in Kerns addition, recently referred to. It was proposed to use a barn of J W Kerns standing on the inclosed property for impounding purposes, but when the marshal went out to put the scheme in operation he found the owners of the stock had anticipated him, having previously got wind of the movement and withdrawn them The effect, however, is that desired, if it prove permanent.

DAIRYING IN THE EAST.

What an Observing, Interested Man from this Section Noticed in Journeys Through the States

Mr David Shepherd, who has large dairy interests near Washougal, returned over the Northern Pacific from a four weeks' visit in Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, Kansas, and other of the northwestern states. He returns with much valuable information regarding the dairy interests of those states, having visited farms, creameries, factories, stock yards, fairs and packing establishments. When he left here his cows were yielding about twenty-six pounds of milk per day. He finds the average over sections visited to be seventeen pounds. This is explained from the fact that eastern pasturage is less favorable to large yields, there being no overflowed bottoms and consequently more feed used Dairymen there own from forty to one hundred cows which graze in enclosures or are fed, largely on corn, the "flash" grass soon giving out. Mr Shepherd was strongly impressed with the high degree of cleanliness maintained everywhere. Yards and barns are kept as clean as possible Milking is mostly done by women, and milk placed into eight gallon cans for shipment. Few make butter at home, as they prefer selling milk and buying butter for table use The evening milking is placed in cans, which are lowered into cisterns, where they remain over night. Morning's milk is also cooled in the same manner before shipping to the creameries or to Chicago. Cans are returned from factories perfectly clean, to avoid careless work by employes of dairies. Elgin is the great center of the western dairy interests. That district ships daily to Chicago 10,000 cans, or 335 tons of milk. Early morning brings busy scenes in and about Elgin Hundreds of wagons empty their loads of milk there, both for shipment and creamery use The large condensing factory at Elgin uses from fifteen to twenty tons of milk daily When it is considered that many minor creameries in and about Elgin are constantly at work, one can do no more than imagine the huge quantity of milk consumed. Dundee and Algonquin neighboring towns, support creameries using six to ten tons daily

By means of late inventions there is no waste of milk, machines to separating milk and cream are employed, large quantities of cheese being manufactured Two late inventions, the De Laval cream separator and the Danish Weston centrifugal machine, have a capacity of 700 to 1200 pounds per hour These inventions are largely used about Elgin, but have not come into general use elsewhere as yet. Iowa, Mr Shepherd concludes, is greatly behind Illinois in its dairy interests. That state cools its milk by the old system and does not use the separators. The dairy interests of the Western States were carefully studied by Mr Shepherd, and he returns with much valuable information that can not be given at this time because of its variety and breadth

The large creameries are packing the bulk of their product in tubs Recently they have put up considerable in two-pound tins for the English trade Mr Shepherd was shown through the largest factories and given all possible opportunities for studying their workings He was everywhere met with the utmost attention, and has a good word for all with whom he came in contact. Besides doing the ranches and factories, he visited the stock yards at Chicago and the Iowa and Minnesota state fairs The Chicago yards kill 1000 cattle daily and change live hogs into cuts at the rate of 600 an hour The hog is hurried through at a terrific pace by means of machinery, and his squeal is hardly lost before he is meat At both of the state fairs were fine exhibits of cattle and horses, there being 00 head at Des Moines and 800 head at St. Paul Of cattle there were choice herds of Herefords, Polled Angus, Galloways, Holsteins, Jerseys and new Swiss importations, the latter exhibited for the first time in this country The western dairymen use about the same breeds as seen in Oregon While at the Minnesota fair Mr Shepherd bought two cabinet creameries, which he will place in the Mechanics' fair here next month At Dundee he attended an auction sale of cattle, where forty cows with young calves brought an average of $4

While the Oregon dairy interests are small compared with those of Illinois and Iowa they are being constantly extended and in time will prove a source of profit. The people engaged in it in the western states show evidence of thrift and are better off, financially, than the farming classes The most of them dread the severe winters and many are looking toward Oregon as a future home The missionary car sent out by the Oregon state immigration board is attracting much attention and our state can expect some immigration during the fall months, Mr Shepherd meeting with many people of average means who intend to come this way as soon as they can withdraw their capital there

FROM THE CANADIAN PACIFIC TERMINUS

PORT MOODY, B C Sept. 8

The ceremonies attending the laying of the last spike on the Canadian Pacific will occur next month the date not having been yet determined upon The road will certainly be then completed, with the exception of snow sheds, etc The final completion will have nothing of the character of the Northern's golden spike "blow out," but all the railroad tycoons and many government notabilities will come out. Through trains will run during the winter, but it is not believed that there will be a regular schedule, owing to the non-completion of snow sheds and other protections against snow blockades. Commencing this fall or possibly not until spring, an era of lively times will doubtless be inaugurated here

The magnificent American ship Benjamin F Packard has gone to Tacoma to load wheat at thirty shillings The American ship James Drummond has just finished discharging and will probably also go to Tacoma, although she will not accept the present rate of twenty-eight shillings. The American bark Gerard C Tobey will finish discharging this week and will load lumber here for Australia. The Tobey has been sold to New Bedford, Mass, parties and Capt Deulo arrived Saturday to succeed Capt. Baker The latter will leave for his Cape Cod home in a few days and after a life time spent at sea will engage in business ashore He will be accompanied east by Capt Cushing another Cape Cod townsman, who will make his first visit to his old home at Bath Maine

The iron piles for wharves here are expected this month from Liverpool

The dense smoke and fog greatly interferes with steamer movements, and our mail service is badly disorganized in consequence

Reports from the Hope mines continue very encouraging, and citizens of both Port Moody and New Westminster are flocking to the scene. Owing to the nearness and easy accessibility of the mines, the news received is considered reliable, and if so, the find is the best that has been struck on the coast in a long time

NEW YORK POLITICS.

Washington special Sept. 8

A great deal of talk is indulged in here just now, over the democratic muddle in the state of New York Hill, who was chosen lieutenant-governor when Cleveland was elected governor, and who, of course, became governor when the latter was made president, is doing all he can to succeed himself. He claims that custom accorded him the place without opposition.

The administration, it is understood here, does not take any stock in Hill, nor is he in favor with the mugwumps If he is nominated and the republicans should nominate a man like Evarts or Judge Davis, the New York democrats now in Washington say he will be defeated by a very large majority It is well understood that if he is the nominee, the administration as such, will take no part in the fight. If Secretary Whitney should be the nominee, then the power of the administration will be exerted to the utmost in his behalf

A new and important feature has been introduced in the problem, too Great efforts are now being quietly made to pacify Tammany and to placate John Kelly A prominent sachem recently said on this point

"They offer us the shrievalty if we will wheel into line and support the ticket to be nominated. That would be satisfactory to Tammany, as an organization, but it would not secure our entire vote, by a good many, for the power and influence of the sachems with the braves are not what they once were The latter can not be controlled as formerly They know their own power too well, and have received too many kicks and curses from certain leaders to be as docile as they once were They have it in, for instance, for ex Mayor Cooper, who is talked of for governor Cooper, you know, joined hands with the enemy a few years ago, and aided in defeating John Kelly Other leaders are fully as obnoxious and the braves will tomahawk them whenever they get a chance, no matter what the sachems may say or do"

This shows what is thought of the supposed undercurrent dickerings and trades going on Shrewd New York observers here say there are thousands of mossbacks in the Empire state who will take a very languid part in the canvass, and that two-thirds of them will not go to the polls at all. The democratic leaders fear more trouble from this than any other source. The announcement made that the president would not take part in the campaign is disbelieved in Washington If almost any other man than Hill is nominated, Mr Cleveland, it is thought, will hand out the patronage to help things along

New York Republicans.

Philadelphia Press.

One of the weak spots in the republican column in New York state last November was Oneida county The protest issued there by a number of stalwart republicans and the consequent falling off in the majority in that locality was one of the causes which contributed to the party's defeat The fact that these same stalwarts are back again in the ranks taking part in the caucuses and expressing themselves as ready to vote for the party's gubernatorial ticket this fall is one of the encouraging proofs of the return of harmony to the republican organization in New York. There are other indications fully as strong as this that the party in that state has not entered a canvass in a dozen years so united and so determined to win as it does this year

WHEAT—Foreign markets cabled firm with continued wet weather throughout England Chi cago and New York closed 1@1¼c above yester day and are seemingly firmer Our market rules irregular receiving prices largely depending upon the needs of a buyer Those having no needs hold back and talk a low range while those in want pay above general bids It should be understood that wants are not exactly pressing purchases being mostly against needs to soon arise Many buyers do not anticipate a lower range or if they do ex pect holders to hang back even more strongly For valley the general bid is $1 [illegible] but $1 20 is possible report saying a fraction more would be possible for a well situated lot Offerings are comparatively light For Walla Walla $1 12½@1 15 is quoted, and, as the case with valley a fraction better possible To secure these fractions the lot must be in a desirable position and clean. While these figures offer no margin for export at freights already named the tenacity of holders makes them possible at this time A cargo now going into a wooden ship here has been sold lately Walla Walla ex iron [illegible] has been held a [illegible] for [illegible] Exporters have found no demand for cargoes [illegible] slight improve ment cabled in the past two days, if continued will offer some opportunity to sell if it does not create a request From the eastern section come the same conflicting reports regarding doings there A San Francisco firm has bought freely at Colfax and some business is reported there for eastern account Liberal quantities are being hauled from near Colfax to Cheney It being a trifle cheaper to make the longer haul than to deliver at Colfax and pay additional freight Harvest is not concluded along the Northern Pacific and the last rain caught some wheat out in sack

NEW YORK Sept 12 Governments dull and strong. This has been the dullest day at the stock exchange for more than two months Opening prices were irregular but changes are limited to only small fractions A feature of the morning's trading were sales in ten share lots of Pacific Mail from 48¾ down to 48 although it had pre viously broken from 48 to 47 Lower sales of ex call lots and as quickly went back to 48 After the morning decline when the lowest prices of the day were reached there was a moderate rally and only limited fluctuations from this [illegible] till the close of the board but dealings during the last hour were at slowly advancing figures

VOLCANIC SOILS OF OREGON.

As everybody knows, there is a great deal of lava among the rocks of Oregon In fact the greater part of all the rocks are of volcanic origin, not only in this state but in Washington territory and Idaho as well. This truth has been recognized for many years The first reference to it that I know of is in [illegible] Parker's book written before 1840 There was [illegible] article in the old Spectator newspaper wherein [illegible] tries to show that the lava cliffs [illegible] sandstone deposits but he was overwhelmed with ignominious defeat in very short order

I have neither the knowledge nor the wish to treat the subject of the lava deposits in a scientific manner but I would like to call attention to sev eral facts with which I have become acquainted and also to put forward some crude theorizing of my own in order to be corroborated or set right by some one who knows concerning the matter

I am told that the lava which we see so plenti fully deposited on the hills is unquestionably of volcanic origin and that it is of the sort called ba salt but I do not care for its name or its origin. Its composition is more to the purpose. It con tains so the mineralogists certain percentages of silica, alumina, magnesia lime iron potash soda, etc combined to form silicates of alumina (clay) and the other named bases When pulver ized it forms a very rich soil containing plenty of the essentials of the growth of plants

I venture to assert that this Oregon basalt is a very unstable rock easily decomposed by the ele ments or in other words broken up into small bits by the influence of the sun's heat and the cold nights but more particularly by the action of the rain This is why I think so I have spent several nights at or near the base of certain cliffs in the mountains, which are quite perpendicular and in the coldest part of the night I have heard an almost continual clatter of falling pieces of the lava of which they are composed I have observed at the base of each of these cliffs a great mass of broken fragments forming a mighty talus or talus sloping downward and being continually added to from above at no small rate I am thus certain that the lava itself is breaking up and wearing down at a speed much faster than is suspected

Every lava cliff upon whose brow I have stood gives the most impressive signs of instability The railway cuttings in basalt are constantly being shattered and are frequently [illegible] down. This effect I ascribe to [illegible] due to changes of temperature

I want to speak now of changes wrought [illegible] suppose by the agency of the rains which are said to have a partly chemical partly mechanical effect The outside of every deposit of lava if it has been exposed for any length of time has become weather stained, and whereas the inside of the [illegible] where no water has been able to pene trate is bright blue in color the exposed parts are [illegible] of a reddish or brownish cast which is caused by [illegible] of decomposed rock In the hills back of Portland and in other localities as well the effect of this weathering can easily be studied At the quarries where building and paving stones are being taken out the interior of the rock shows a blue color while on the edges of long exposed portions the prevailing color is reddish brown. This coloring is owing to the iron compounds which exist in the lava and which are decomposed on exposure It is simply red ochre, the sesquioxide of iron that shows

Not alone does the color change but the rock is eaten into and the outside becoming soft is carried away by the rains and goes to form soil as has been done on an enormous scale everywhere that the lava exists or else is transported by streams to water to resting places along their banks or in the [illegible]

In my opinion the same thing is going on in the whole surface of the lava deposits of the north west which cover from 150 000 to 200 000 square miles according to Professor Le Conte of the Uni versity of California who has made a study of the [illegible] of this coast Still there is noth [illegible] this observation and I introduce it but [illegible] call attention to the enormous extent of this [illegible] of the lava or if I may call it so. It is this de composed matter that forms the most of the soil of this extensive region—a soil that in places is [illegible] of feet deep and in other spots but a few inches yet everywhere partaking of the same character of inexhaustible fertility There is hardly need to bring forward proof that the soil is mainly and in most localities wholly derived from the rotting away of the lava beds for I have no doubt that nearly every one who has observed at all has come to the same conclusion but there are a few considerations that I would dwell on

I have observed a great deal of difference in the lava of different localities but have no information as to the rate at which decomposition takes place in different specimens. I think on the whole that climate has more to do with it than rock character istics for I notice that the lavas of western Oregon have weathered and crumbled the most and so pro duced the most soil which I take to be the effect of the more copious rains added to some effect which I think is produced by the presence of more humid vegetation which also I am inclined to believe hastens the work of rock decomposition that is soil making Possibly the decaying plants set free vegetable acids which have a tendency to combine with the alkaline bases of the rock and so assist its decomposition

My belief then is that the basalt is wearing away and being changed into soil and I think that the operation is going on faster now than ever be fore for the influence of tillage ought to help the pro cess by disturbing masses of earth letting air and water come in contact with rocks which otherwise would remain wrapped as in a mantle resisting chemical action Besides a large quantity of earth is washed off cultivated hillsides by the rains whereby the elements are allowed still freer access to the solid portions which are broken up to feed the soil thus maintaining its fertility and depth This I think is the most practical part of this sub ject The regular renewal of these soils seems to be the reason for their extraordinary endurance On the Red and Waldo hills which are composed of lava many successive crops of wheat have been raised sufficient to totally exhaust the fields of any other known locality but as is well known no manure has ever been applied, nor in my un professional opinion will it ever be necessary to manure the land for nature is adding each year from her inexhaustible store of fertilizing alkali which is the most essential of all manures There is also sand from lime and soluble silica to help plant growth and everything necessary except phosphoric acid which, however must be present or plants would not thrive

If then as I believe our farmers possess land of inexhaustible fertility and which besides, is kept at the highest point of productiveness by nature's own efforts they are surely fortunate and [illegible] some good in [illegible] the riches of the soil and [illegible]

THE REFORM GALE HAS STRUCK HOOD RIVER

HOOD RIVER Sept 11

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

We have a fine specimen of civil service reform there [illegible] administration in the removal of [illegible] postmistress Mrs A. A. Strana[illegible] and the appointment of R. D. Rogers to take her place Mrs Strana[illegible] is the wife of one of Gen. Sher man's veterans which I suppose is sufficient [illegible] for removal She is also a cripple and [illegible] to attend to household duties and has always given general satisfaction in the dis charge of her official duties R. D. Rogers is the new appointee was under bonds to appear before the grand jury of the March term of the circuit court for Wasco county to answer to the charge of grand [illegible], but I am informed that through the mis [illegible] of the justice's papers the case was not [illegible] but that it will be prosecuted the coming term The appointment is considered by all both democrats and republicans, to be an outrage upon the people and to cap the climax the report is that Rogers was made to secure bonds for the [illegible] office and that we are to be deprived of all conveniences Go on with the good work [illegible]

It is a strange statement which the Evangelist makes on good authority that [illegible] can be remembered no young man born and reared in the nine Congregational churches of Hart ford, has within the last fourteen years be come a minister

A reunion of the schoolmates of the poet Whit tier is said to be contemplated Of the 120 pupils of the old Haverhill academy from 1827 to 1830 about twenty-five or thirty are living and most of these have expressed their wish for a meeting

SHERMAN ANSWERS HOADLY.

The Buckeye Governor's Hamilton Speech Sharply Dissected.

He Accuses Hoadly of Misstating his Position, and Reiterates that the Southern Negro is Disfranchised.

At Lebanon Ohio Senator John Sherman took up the speech made by Governor Hoadly at Ham ilton and sharply answered it broadly and fear lessly defining his position on the southern ques tion, disclaiming any desire to perpetuate the ani mosities of the war but expressing a belief that the practical disfranchisement of the colored men of the south is a subject that calls for considera tion The speech was moderate in tone and telling in its points Following is a summary

I wish to answer Gov Hoadly with all the re spect due to his high office and his personal char acter and ability I do not think he fairly main tains his reputation in his recent speech at Hamil ton but I can forgive him to some extent for his present political associations I think he owed it to his past record and I believe his conscientious conviction to answer arguments rather than to evade or avoid the position of his adversaries by cant phrases about the bloody shirt and the like I will do what I can to see that he shall under stand distinctly the issue we present to him and I [illegible] will meet it In his speech he has not fairly stated my position Upon the important issue growing out of the condition of affairs in the south he has dodged and avoided with the skill of a lawyer in a way practically to admit all that I claim and this is the less excusable in him for during the greater portion of the long struggle in re spect to slavery he was a republican and agreed with me on the issues of the war He claims to be the friend of the colored people, but does not do them the justice to truly state the in justice done them according to his own well considered opinions in the past In my speech at Mount Gilead I stated that the war was over and that I was willing to forget and forgive all that the rebels did in the war and only demanding what was fairly won by the Union soldiers as the results of the war He agreed with me in supporting all the constitutional amend ments and all I ask or have ever asked is that these be fairly observed and enforced Six mil lions of people were emancipated from their bonds by the war and the amendments made with his hearty approval and as a result of this they were entitled to vote and were granted representation in congress and in the electoral college They have been practically denied many of the neces sary incidents of liberty among the most precious of which is the right of free discussion, and they are now disfranchised and openly and boldly de prived of all the safeguards by which alone their liberties can be preserved He does not deny this If he did then the proof is so clear upon the re cords that the argument between us would soon be ended At first they were excluded from fran chise by acts of violence amounting in thousands of cases to murder in the states where they were largely in the majority but where from their feebleness and want of discipline and organization, they were

POWERLESS TO RESIST

By such means the democratic party obtained ab solute power and then though the violence became less the disfranchisement of the colored people became absolute and complete by fraud so great and universal that there is scarce a district in the south was there any pretense of a fair election In some cases election districts were organized so that the negro could not vote In others they were openly cheated and defrauded by the use of tissue ballots and every device which the ingenuity of crim could invent These facts were over and over again admitted and justified on the ground that the people of the south would not submit to what the chose to call negro rule The result is a complete and effective disfranchisement of the colored race in every district where their votes would probably change the result Can Governor Hoadly deny this in the face of the accumulated testimony known to him perfectly well He does not attempt to deny it, and yet he pretends to be the friend of the colored man But not only is this unjust to the colored man but it is unjust to the white men of the north Thirty-eight mem bers of congress and of the electoral college are based upon the 6 000 000 of colored peo ple in the South. The effect of the crimes I have mentioned is to confer upon the people of the south not only the number of votes to which they are entitled for the white population, but also the thirty eight votes based upon the colored popula tion and in this way in some of the southern states every white vote possesses the political pow er of two white voters in the northern states The colored people have practically no voice in con gress and no voice in the electoral college Mr Cleveland is now president of the United States instead of James G. Blaine by reason of these crimes I claim that this should be corrected An injustice so gross and palpable will not be sub mitted to by the colored people of the South nor by fair minded white men in the South who hate wrong and injustice nor by the great body of the northern people by whose sacrifices the Union cause the war was brought to a successful termin ation It will not be submitted to and Governor Hoadly from his former position ought to be one of the first to demand and insist upon a remedy and not avoid or belittle it by cant phrases I con fess there are difficulties in the way of a proper remedy This may be brought about first by an appeal to the South to which will at least [illegible] lasts and to take our politics sectional and inspire the same resistance to the democratic party encountered at the begin ning of the war In every state of the south there are thousands of patriotic men who feel as I do [illegible] and they would take their voice [illegible] but for an oppressive and intolerant sentiment which will not even allow discussion of this subject or the formation of parties in the south based upon this issue Still this appeal has been tried and is now being made, and will continue to be made in several of the states but especially in Virginia and North Carolina In South Carolina Mississippi and Louisiana and perhaps in other states a fair election would at once correct this evil but it will be resisted as a matter of course by the dominant elements that now control the South In Virginia and North Carolina a distinct presentation of these questions followed by a fair election would, as shown by the returns of the recent election, place these two powerful states upon the side of justice and right We will as a matter of course be resisted by most of the lawless elements of the South and by the democratic party in the North which is now as it has always been absolutely opposed to the rights of any portion of our people where these stand in the way of their success If the policy of the past is to be pursued and there is no re dress for the colored people of the South for these offenses committed under the color of state laws then under the fourteenth amendment of the con stitution we may fairly appeal to all the northern states to stand together to reduce the representa tion based upon the colored vote and upon this question Governor Hoadly ought to be where he was during the war I again repeat the substance of what I said at Mount Gilead and until every man in this country who by the constitution is en titled to vote in any state shall be able freely to exercise that right and to have his vote fairly counted and the sympathy of every just man who has any respect for the obligations of the consti tution or of duty or honor, ought to be on the side of the republican party That this question is ex citing the careful consideration of reflecting men in the South is shown in the discussions in many of the southern papers and very clearly in recent ar ticles in the Century magazine written by south ern men The speaker here quoted from an arti cle by George W. Cable in the January number of that magazine, speaking of the unfortunate condi tion of the southern negro. When we reflect that this gross oppression of the colored people is ac companied by

between the whites of the North and the South it is easy to prophesy that the time is not far distant when both will be corrected, in spite of the jeers of joint clans The unnatural position of the solid South made so by crime and violence is now ex citing the attention of conservative and business men in every southern state The contest now go ing on Virginia is led by prominent leaders in the rebel army and the issue distinctly made is for the equal political rights of all citizens and a liberal policy for the protection and development of in ternal resources Every republican and every moderate democrat who regards the interests of his party and [illegible] sympathize with the men leading this movement though nearly all of them were [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Mahone [illegible] Davis [illegible] that the [illegible] Mississippi [illegible] they are [illegible] willing to acknowledge [illegible] support the constitutional amendment He can not understand the difference between the leaders of the ku-klux klans and men such as Key and Ake rman who did all they could to put down the [illegible] between men who [illegible] to deprive citi zens of their constitutional rights and those who are in favor of maintaining them Gov ernor Hoadly claiming to be a friend of the col ored people is in political association with every man who burns schoolhouses murders and [illegible] people cheats at the ballot box and by various devices deprive colored people of their rights He makes no distinction between Marshal Wright of your town who tried to prevent fraud at the ballot box and Mullen the police officer who without authority of law arrested more than 100 voters and kept them confined beyond the reach of habeas corpus merely to deprive them of their right to vote I am willing to maintain political fellowship with every man North or South whatever part he may have taken in the war pro vided he will be true and faithful to the constitu tional amendments and to the rights of his fellow men while Gov Hoadly is now in political associa tion with every man who has violated these rights

Mr Sherman then proceeded to discuss the tem perance and other questions giving a careful re view of the decisions in the liquor cases main taining that the Scott law was not only constitu tional but had been so declared by the supreme court after the fullest examination and its reversal on a collateral point was purely a partisan decision made to relieve the legislature from its promises and embarrassments

The New York papers seem more troubled abo [illegible] suitable inscription for the Grant monument than they are about the million dollars to erect the monument It might be well enough not to hurry about the inscription By the time the monument is finished the English may be one of the dead languages Louisville Courier Journal

Ex-Governor John Peter St. John of Kansas, has made a brief speech at Harrisburg Pa., on the progress of the cause of prohibition Mr St. John is an authority for he is said to carry the cause principally in his pocketbook
